Chapter Overview

Rural development means action for the development of areas that lag behind in the overall development of the village economy. It covers human resource development (literacy, health), land reforms, infrastructure, poverty alleviation and raising agricultural productivity.

Key issues are timely and affordable credit, efficient agricultural marketing, diversification of rural employment beyond crop farming, and sustainable practices such as organic farming that protect soil and health.

Important Topics and Concepts

Meaning of Rural Development

- Development of human resources – literacy, health, skills.
- Land reforms and development of local resources.
- Infrastructure – electricity, irrigation, credit, marketing, transport, roads.
- Special measures for poverty alleviation.
- Raising productivity in agriculture.

Rural Credit

- Farmers need credit for seeds, fertilisers, implements and family needs.
- Informal sources: moneylenders, traders, relatives – high interest.
- Formal sources: commercial banks, Regional Rural Banks, cooperatives, land development banks.
- NABARD (1982) coordinates rural financing.
- Self-Help Groups (SHGs) and microcredit help small borrowers, especially women.
- Problems: loan defaults, inadequate reach, dependence on informal lenders.

Agricultural Marketing

- Process of assembling, storing, processing, transporting, packaging, grading and distributing farm produce.
- Problems: distress sale, low prices, middlemen.
- Government measures: regulated markets, cooperative marketing, infrastructure (warehouses, cold storage), minimum support price (MSP), buffer stocks and PDS.
- Alternative channels: Apni Mandi (Punjab, Haryana), Hadaspar Mandi (Pune), Rythu Bazars (Andhra Pradesh), Uzhavar Sandies (Tamil Nadu).

Diversification into Productive Activities

- Diversification of crops and shifting workforce to allied and non-farm activities.
